

Trade In Your Old Eyeglasses or Spectacle Mountings

Get The New 1915 Model Shur-Ons

The style of glasses change just as all styles change. Improvements are made. New styles come out. The 1915 Shur-Ons mounting is lighter, smaller, less conspicuous and admits the use of the fashionable large lenses.

You get a new spring and think nothing of the expense. The old one would do as well, but it is out of date.

Your glasses are even more conspicuous than your hat.

We keep on wearing out old glasses when you can trade in your old ones for new ones. Glasses especially designed for your face, perfectly corrected for your eyes and down to the minute in style.

STUMP SPEECHES NOT TEST.

E. C. Brandenburg Says Woman Can Be Patriotic Out of Politics.

That a woman can be as much of a patriot as a man was asserted by E. C. Brandenburg, president of the Board of Trade, in an address at the graduation class of Belmont Seminary last evening. He declared that in order to be a patriot it is not necessary for a woman to make stump speeches or take part in political campaigns, but that many missions come to her which she can perform.

A diploma for the full course was awarded Miss Catherine Jefferson Somerville, principal of the seminary. Certificates in English were awarded Miss Winifred Mildred Blinnham of Indiana and Miss Lillian Marie Grosh of Iowa. The invocation and benediction were delivered by the Rev. John Lee Allison, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Alexandria.

Arthur Pope Murray, seventy years old, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., arrived in Richmond, Va., after a 700-mile hike, to attend the United Confederate Veterans' reunion, June 1-3, and to make his home in Virginia. He was a member of the Alexandria Light Infantry, Kemps' Battery.

THE WEEK

Epitome of Events Ending May 22, 1915.

PROGRESS OF EUROPEAN WAR.

The immediate entrance into the war of Italy as an opponent of the Teutonic alliance seemed assured; the chamber of deputies and senate voted full authority to the government; the Italian army was mobilized on the frontier; Austrian offer of more territory was taken into consideration by the cabinet without affecting the tide of opinion for hostilities. Following discord between Lord Fisher, admiral of the British fleet, and Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, a coalition cabinet, made up of all parties, was arranged. Premier Asquith is to remain at the head of the new cabinet. Sir Edgar Speyer of the German house of international bankers resigned from the British privy council because of criticism of his loyalty. The automobile of the kaiser, which he left to visit battle progress in Galicia, was wrecked by a Russian shell.

Military Operations.

French troops were landed on the Gallipoli peninsula and attacked the Turkish positions at Krithia, capturing them after desperate fighting, the allies were reported to have improved their situation in the attack on Constantinople at terrible loss of life. In seven bloody battles on the western front the allies claimed to have repulsed heroic German attacks, and the German army to advance. Russian claim to have repulsed the Austrians and to have captured Czernowit in Bukovina. The Teutonic allies claimed a decisive victory over the Russian army on the River San in central Galicia in a fight with twenty-seven British aeroplanes a Zeppelin was destroyed in the neighborhood of Brussels.

Conditions Affecting the U. S.

The United States was requested to take over the affairs of Austria at the governments of the two nations in anticipation of Italy's participation in the war; the ambassador of Austria in Washington held conference with Secretary Bryan on the approaching situation in Germany demanding a strict accounting for loss of American lives as a result of submarine warfare on merchant vessels; it was reported that the German foreign office was awaiting investigation of the Kaiser for his consideration of the matter.

NATIONAL.

President Wilson, in a letter discussing the liquor question, announced himself as opposed to the injection of the subject into national or state politics, as a menace to legislation and regarding it as a local issue. In an address at New York, at ceremonies in connection with the fleet review, the President lauded the navy and Secretary Daniels, and voiced his ideal of the navy as a force for peace. The Atlantic fleet, mobilized in New York for review by the President, afterward steamed out to sea. Secretary Garrison of the War Department, speaking at Lake Mead, discussed the problem of national defense. In the libel suit brought by William Barnes of New York, the jury stood eleven in favor of former President Roosevelt, and one for Barnes. Levi E. Morton, former Vice President, celebrated his ninety-first birthday anniversary. Clarence S. Darrow, testifier in the industrial relations commission, urged the abolition of criminal punishment in favor of hospital treatment. Appeal was made to the governor of Georgia to commute the sentence of Leo M. Frank, condemned to hang for the murder of a factory girl in Atlanta. Among the students eleven in favor of former President Roosevelt, and one for Barnes.

FOREIGN.

Delegates to the Pan-American financial conference arrived in Washington, where the sessions are to be held, beginning Monday. Mexican troops were reported to have quelled the Yaqui uprising in Sonora. Chinese bankers, on their way to Washington, visited various cities of the United States. The Portuguese government was expelled by a revolution that put in power the national assembly. Joao Chagas, premier of the new cabinet, was wounded by Senator Freitas, and was reported to be losing his eyesight. Princess Yasu, sister of the Emperor of Japan, was wedded with a court ceremony to Prince Naruhiko Higashikuni of the army. Saburo Shimada was elected president of the Japanese lower house. F. N. Charleston, a member of the House of Representatives, was reported to be in power the national assembly. ALASKA HERO A VICTIM OF LUSTANIAN DISASTER

Capt. James B. Miller Was in Thrilling Race With Death to Rescue the Tahoma.

Capt. James Blaine Miller of the field force of the coast and geodetic survey, who is believed to have perished on the Lusitania, was the hero last summer of the thrilling race with death for 1,600 miles to rescue the crew of the revenue cutter Tahoma, wrecked on a hidden reef in Bering sea.

Capt. Miller was one of the most active and efficient young officers of the survey, and was in command of the survey steamer Patterson, which was the first vessel to start to the rescue of the Tahoma, although two other vessels, the Cordova and the Kodiak, arrived at about the same time. For this service he was presented with a handsome medal by the rescued officers and crew of the Tahoma. This voyage, undertaken late in the season, was attended with considerable risk, the Patterson being one of the old vessels that the survey is now trying to replace.

Capt. Miller had taken passage on the Cunard steamer Cameronia, which was requisitioned by the British government at the last moment, and her passengers transferred to the Lusitania. No information in regard to him has been received since that disaster was announced, his name is not among the list of survivors, and there is practically no doubt that he went down with the vessel.

Born in Pennsylvania.

James Blaine Miller was born in Erie county, Pa., October 30, 1885, and was, therefore, in his thirty-second year. He graduated at Oberlin College, Ohio, in June, 1902, with the degree of bachelor of arts. He was appointed an aid in the survey June 18, 1902, and was promoted to assistant September 1, 1906, and during his twelve years of service was employed chiefly on hydrographic and leveling work in various localities. In 1904 he was engaged on the survey of the Chesapeake bay, in 1906 he was placed in command of the steamer Research in the Philippine Islands; in 1909 he was transferred to the command of the Patterson; in 1911 he returned to the United States, and in the fall of that year he was placed in command of the steamer Patterson for surveying work in the Hawaiian Islands and on the coast of Alaska. He was detached from the command of the Patterson in March of the present year, and had been granted leave for several months to take a vacation trip abroad, leaving Washington April 25.

His father is Thomas C. Miller, attorney-at-law at Erie, Pa. It is understood that he had a sister living in Chicago, a mother, and in the employ of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, and other relatives living in Pennsylvania.

CONFERS WITH MR. GUTHRIE.

President Wilson Hears Particulars of Japan-China Negotiations.

President Wilson conferred last night with George W. Guthrie, American ambassador to Japan, who has come home for a vacation. Mr. Guthrie does not expect any critical situation to arise in Tokyo, and will remain in this country until August 25. He informed the president fully as to the recent negotiations between China and Japan, and conditions that now prevail in the relations of the two countries.

Mr. Guthrie is still studying the final agreement between Japan and China to satisfy himself as to whether anything in it interferes with the open door policy of American treaty between the United States and China and Japan.
